

My name is Jim Darling; Im 48, live in Jigsaw Town, and someone murdered my wife.

I watch cop shows. I know the husband is always the primary suspect. But Im telling you right now, I did not kill my wife. She was all I had besides our only daughter. What motive would I have? I may not have always been faithful, but Faith, she had faith in me. No one will ever love me the way she loved me. I can't get seeing her lying there dead in that damn green room out of my head! She had to have it painted green. She would say, "green makes me happy."

Suspect: Jim Darling, Husband
Ht 5'10 - Age 48

It was like any other Saturday. Faith had plans to work, so I went golfing with some friends. Afterward, we grabbed some food. It was just before 9:30 when I called her to see what she was doing.

Faith was upset because her best friend Siena had just left. Siena drinks more than she should, and she constantly goes out, drinks too much, and then drives home drunk. Faith said that when Siena got there, she was slurring her words. She tried talking to her about getting help, and the conversation ended with Siena leaving upset.

I told her I wanted to see a movie that was playing at 10:10 and asked if she wanted to go. She said she was too upset and told me to go on without her, so I did. That decision will haunt me for the rest of my life. I will never again watch a Tom Cruise movie without feeling regret and anger.

I left the theater just after midnight and went straight home. I don't remember much after I walked in the door. The police say I called 911 at twenty after midnight, but I have no idea.

I also have no idea who would hurt Faith and why. The officer told me my fingerprints were on the murder weapon. I am not a traditional husband. I do my laundry, and I like my shirts pressed. The real question is why Tristin, Nancy, and Siena's fingerprints would be on the damn murder weapon!
